

Sarah Newton-Scott

Program Manager

Sarah has been with CCP since 1999. In her current role, she provides programmatic leadership and management for many of CCP's projects. Her work focuses on building capacity, community, and leadership to improve health and promote social justice. She brings her considerable skills and experience in designing, implementing, and evaluating training and leadership development programs including systems and tools to support peer learning, organizational development for a variety of community organizations and public agencies, and facilitation of group processes to engage sector and community leaders to solve problems.

She also manages CCP's planning and convening services, from content development to logistics implementation. Here she creates safe, welcoming, and supportive environments for participants to learn from and work with one another, along with the tools and processes to support that work.

Sarah has a Bachelor of Arts degree in Anthropology from University of California, Davis with minors in Women's Studies and Psychology. When not at work, she can often be found birding and exploring nature in the greater Sacramento region.
